

How does external activities affect highschool students performance in terms of class average?

By Mariam, Quddus, Saman and Michael

Our Group Claim: Dedication and health have a huge effect on achievement in class average.

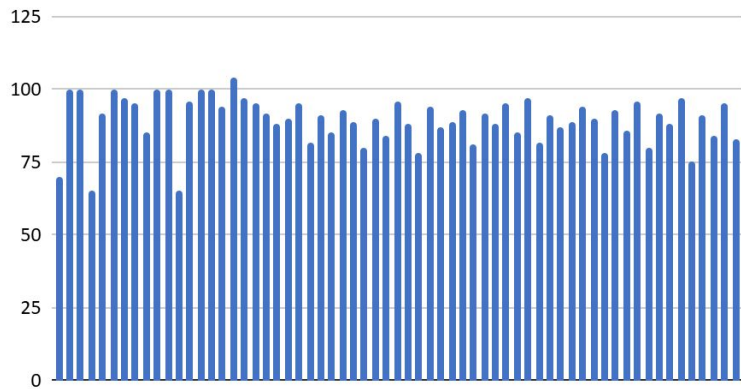

Limitations

Interviewing people in a biased sample for example a library signifies a student as as studious reflecting their study habits. Compared to lunch where students spend leisure time. Our data was acquainted by interviewing people within these 2 locations.

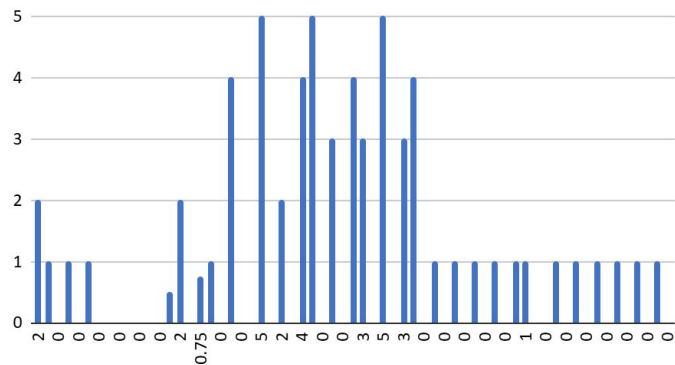

Evidence#1

Students who spent more than 3 hours at the gym receive grades over 75 within the range of class average from 75-100

Class Average

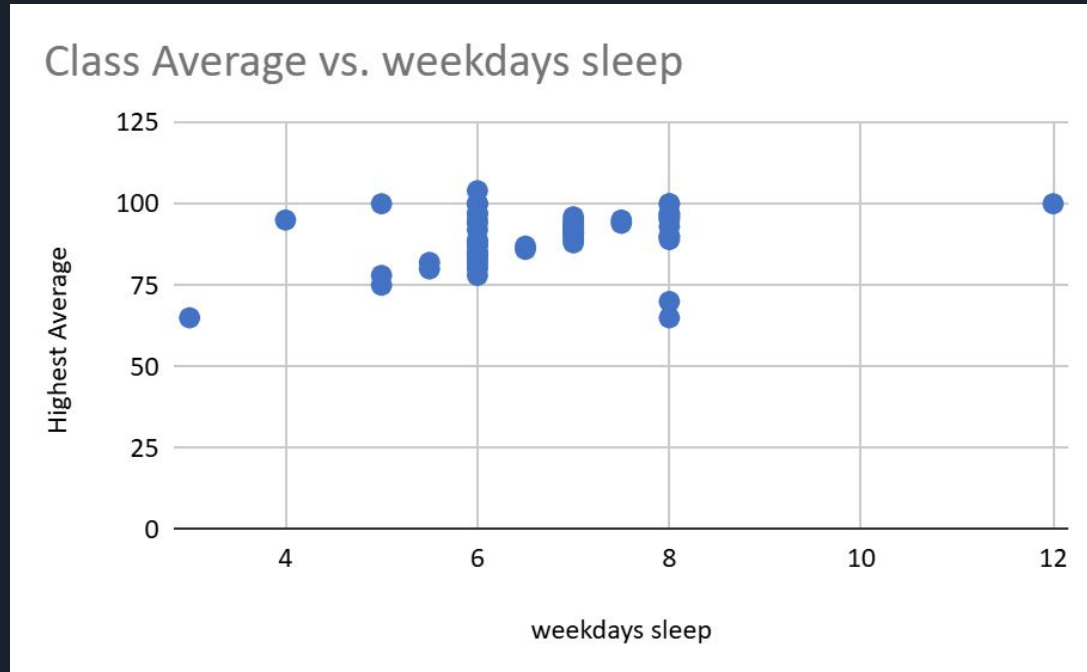

Gym hours

Evidence #2

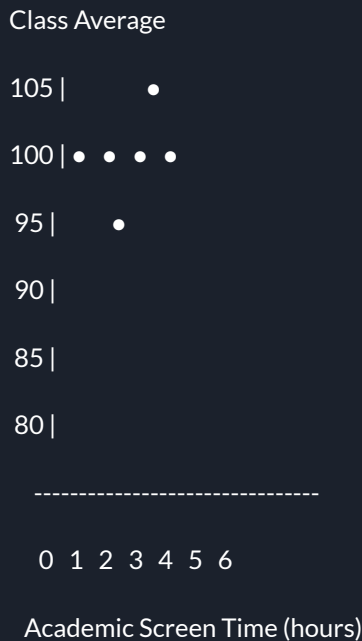

Students who sleep moderately 6 hours more receive higher grades between the range of 75 to 110.

Chart 2:

Evidence #3:

Students who spend 3 hours or more on academic screen time receive a class average of 100 or above (Range: 100-105)

CER

External activities like dedication and health increase student performance in class. Our evidence presents. Students who sleep moderately 6 hours more receive higher grades between the range of 75 to 110 and Students who spent more than 3 hours at the gym receive grades over 75 within the range of class average from 75-100. Students who spend 3 hours or more on academic screen time receive a class average of 100 or above (Range: 100-105)